

Mynan Web Development Bootcamp

Mynan web development is all about turning eager students into professional web developers by having them build projects that will train them to develop the skills to be productive in the workplace. Here you will be working with industry professionals to get expert feedback and review throughout your education so that you can make the best projects that get you noticed by hiring managers. Students will decide what course(s) they want to enroll in. Instructors will be in charge of explaining course material to students during the first half of class and assisting them in creating their projects during the remaining second half. Students will be asked to fill out a form that asks students a sequence of questions that basically boils down to “What have you learned / accomplished today”. Please note that students are required to enroll in at least one course to have access to professional feedback and review. A student can enroll in more than one course but their class section times can’t have any conflicts. A career coach is assigned to each student to help build their portfolio and resume. Towards the end of each course, students will start having frequent meetings with career coaches where they will start building and improving their resume based on the projects they worked on and the daily accomplishment logs they made. Each student is required to complete a project for each of the class sections they are in. Coaches have the responsibility of making sure each student who graduates the boot camp has a completed resume and portfolio to show off. Note that students are required to create no more or less than one resume and portfolio. The resume must contain one accomplishment and the portfolio must contain at least one project.
